WEEKLY REFLECTION:

Theme: Love That Endures Suffering

This week's Gospel reading leads us through some of the most solemn and heart-wrenching moments in Scripture. From the intimacy of the Last Supper to the agony of the Cross, Luke 22:14—23:56 invites us to walk with Jesus through betrayal, injustice, suffering, and ultimately, self-giving love.

At the Last Supper, Jesus shares a final meal with His disciples, offering His body and blood in the form of bread and wine. Despite knowing that one of them will betray Him and that the rest will abandon Him, He chooses love. He washes their feet. He prays for them. He gives them the gift of the Eucharist.

As the chapter unfolds, we witness Peter's denial, Judas' betrayal, and Jesus' arrest and trial. The crowd that once praised Him now shouts, "Crucify Him!" Yet even in His pain, Jesus remains steadfast in mercy. He heals the ear of a servant during His arrest, prays for those who mock Him, and forgives the criminal beside Him, promising, "Today you will be with me in paradise."

This passage is not just a recounting of Jesus' suffering; it is a testament to His unwavering love. The Cross is not the ending, it is the ultimate expression of grace. Jesus takes on the weight of human sin, not out of obligation, but out of love.

🌳 How can I show love and mercy when I feel wronged or misunderstood?

🌳 Where in my life am I being called to forgive or seek forgiveness?

🌳 How does Jesus' calm endurance through injustice inspire my own faith journey?

Prayer

Lord Jesus, in Your final hours, You gave everything for us. Teach me to love as You love—to forgive as You forgave. Help me to carry my own crosses with faith, knowing that You walk beside me. May I never forget the depth of Your sacrifice, and may it transform how I live each day. Amen.

In Christ's Love,

Fr. Kenny Udumka
